

HOME is where the
NOISE is

A short animation by Jessica Schueler

Essential Information

Writer & Director
Animator

Jessica Schueler
Jessica Schueler

Aspect Ratio

2:3

Duration

35 seconds

Picture

Color

Date Completed

May 14, 2015

State/Country of Production

New York, USA

Logline

A short animation that shows that even when you think your home is quiet, it's alive with sound.

Synopsis

This abstract animation was inspired by the home. We get so used to the sounds in our homes that we tend to tune them out, but if we sit down and really listen, we find that our houses are more alive than we think. This short piece includes eight different sounds represented by abstract animations.

Contact Information

Email schueljm@alfredstate.edu

Phone (716) 697-9416

Filmmaker's Statement

As a "new" artist, having only started to produce art a few years ago, I like to explore things that I haven't yet tried. Abstract animation has always piqued my interest and I decided to have a go at it with Home Is Where The Noise Is. Animated frame by frame in Photoshop, this piece explores sound while at the same time relating to everyone who chooses to watch it.

In going forward with my art career, I'd love to explore abstract animation more because I don't feel as though I have a distinct style just quite yet. In addition to abstract animation, I am also very fond of stop motion animation and hope to continue expanding and exploring that as well.

Biography

Jessica Schueler is a senior in the Digital Media and animation program at Alfred State College. She has worked on all types of media including 3D animation, 2D animation, stop motion animation, live action films, motion graphics and fine arts. She currently resides in Amherst, New York.